This project consists of monitoring unit and sensor unit. The sensor unit acquires the multi parametric medical data such as body temperature, Respiratory & heart beat etc. From different sensors using various signal processing techniques. Better proactive analysis can be given only if the data collected from the patient is classified properly. The collected parameters are given to controller unit. It compares collected data values to original values. If any deviation occur, it produce control signal to patient via Buzzer. For monitoring purpose LCD display is used. A threshold value will be set in the program by the programmer. If the values of heat beat sensor or temperature sensor or the respiratory sensor exceeds the threshold values prescribed then the GSM module sends a text message to the care takers phone number.
